

ENERGY IS WASTED IN KNEADING BREAD

Agricultural Department's Baker
Tells Women How to Get Good Loaves.

The American housewife wastes much energy in making bread, according to Miss Hannah Wessling, expert bread maker for the Department of Agriculture.

Bread doesn't need much kneading, she declares. Let the yeast germs do your work, is the motto of this busy little woman, who knows how to make all kinds of bread from German pumpernickel to Hawaiian banana bread.

Good American white bread is her specialty, however. The Department of Agriculture expert uses an extra quantity of yeast, for she cannot go through the "setting" process that many housewives use, nor can she work at night, as the bakery employees do.

Miss Wessling has been carrying on a series of experiments to determine the relative nutritive qualities of various kinds of flour and flour substitutes.

Her tests have shown that banana flour mixed with white flour gives a fine bread. One-fourth banana flour and three-fourths white flour make a loaf that is of fine brown appearance and has a slightly "foreign" taste that is pleasant.

"No bread can be entirely satisfactory without wheat flour, however," declares Miss Wessling. "It must have the wheat flour in order to be 'light,' and everybody wants that kind of bread."

Expert's Rule For Good Bread

When it comes to the kind of bread that mother used to make—and then some, the Government's official breadmaker declares that the following instructions are the only ones to follow:

Take twelve ounces of flour for a one-pound loaf. Use one-fourth ounce of sugar, one-fourth ounce of salt, and ten ounces of tepid water. Mix the yeast, salt, and flour, and then let them ferment for an hour instead of using them immediately after they "foam." Warm the flour and mix with the ferment.

Allow the mass to stand one hour. Don't handle it. It doesn't need much kneading. Mix it up and allow it to stand another forty-five minutes, when it is ready for the molds.

The entire process should be conducted in a room where the temperature is 80 to 86 degrees. Any warmer means sour bread, and any cooler, "soggy" bread.

YALE MEN STIRRED BY STRANGE PAPER

Eavesdropper, Successor to One
Suppressed by Faculty, Raps
University Traditions.

NEW HAVEN, May 4.—The Eavesdropper, Yale's mysterious paper, which caused a sensation when it made its first appearance two months ago, is out again. It is filled with attacks upon university students, and especially upon secret societies.

It is the legitimate successor to the Horoscope, which was suppressed by the faculty ten years ago. The Eavesdropper contains a horoscope of the day's events. Tap day is May 15. Among the men picked for Skull and Bones are H. H. Ketchum of Brooklyn, captain of the football team; Almet F. Jenks, who is put down as the "best bet"; Herman L. Rogers, of New York; Avery, football player; Gile, baseball pitcher; Cornish, of the football and baseball teams; Lippincott, of the crew; King, high stand man, and Hobson.

For Scroll and Keys are Douglass, chairman of the News; Mitchell, football player; Evans, of the tennis team; Phelps, of the Mandolin Club, and Wheeler, of the football team.

Those slated for Wolf's Head include Blossom, captain of this year's baseball team; Brown, the pitcher; Lord, the man who introduced knickerbockers; and McHenry, of the crew.

BABY'S TOES GIVE CLUE TO MURDERS

Certain Marks Predict That Child Will Slay Its Father
When Grown.

PARIS, May 4.—The Countess de la Rochefoucauld has just given to the world the result of her researches into a remarkable and an entirely new science, which she says she has discovered. She can tell, she says, from an inspection of its toes whether a child now in the cradle is going to kill its father when it grows up.

The idea was first suggested to her by the story of Oedipus, famous paricide, who bore on his foot the stigma of the infamies which he was to accomplish. That made the countess think very hard, indeed, and ever since she has been busily engaged in inspecting the toes of paricides with a view of discovering if a definite type exists.

The result of her work is embodied in the momentous announcement which she made a few days ago: "He who is going to kill his father has a shorter big toe than most other people."

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR ATTEND SERVICES

Alexandria Pastor Preaches Special Sermon to Old Dominion
Commandery in Second Presbyterian Church—Elks Will Hold Lodge of Sorrow for John A. Marshall.

WASHINGTON TIMES BUREAU.

ALEXANDRIA, VA., MAY 4.—Wearing the full dress uniforms of the Knights Templar and bearing the black and gold banners of the order and the Stars and Stripes, three score members of Old Dominion Commandery, No. 11, Knights Templar, marched from the Masonic Temple this afternoon to the Second Presbyterian Church, where the annual Ascension Day services were held. On King street the formation of a cross was made, the officers and past commanders forming the top with the standard bearers in the center.

The members of the order entered the church singing "Onward, Christian Soldiers." When the creed was said the knights arose with drawn sword and testified to their belief in the cardinal principles of the Christian faith. The Rev. Dr. John Lee Allison, pastor of the church, preached a sermon on "The Ascension of Our Lord."

A lodge of sorrow will be held by Alexandria Lodge of Elks tomorrow night at 8 o'clock to take action on the death of John A. Marshall, who died yesterday morning. Mr. Marshall's funeral will be held Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock from his residence, corner of Wolfe and Pitt streets. Services will be conducted by the Rev. J. W. Duffey, pastor of the Methodist Church, South.

and the Rev. W. F. Watson, D. D., pastor of the First Baptist Church. The ritual of the Order of Elks will be conducted by Exalted Ruler Bales and the officers of the lodge.

Mrs. Emma Marks, sixty-eight years old, died at the residence of her son-in-law, Herbert Morton, 212 North Pitt street, last night at 12 o'clock.

The new Westminster building of the Second Presbyterian Church was used for the first time today by the Sunday school. A rally day service will be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock, which will be addressed by Norman Little, superintendent of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Sunday school, of Washington.

Work was started yesterday on the new dam and reservoir of the Alexandria Water Company, at Barcroft, Fairfax county, five miles west of Alexandria. Seven months will be required to complete the work, which will cost $125,000.

Twenty-five delegates, representing the two lodges of Odd Fellows in Alexandria, will leave next Sunday morning for Roanoke, where the annual State convention of the order will be held on May 12.

Former State Senator Lewis H. Marchen delivered an address in the Young People's building this afternoon before the members of Lone Star Camp, No. 1, American Indian Guards, on "What We Owe to the State."

WISCONSIN PASSED WRONG AMENDMENT

Legislature Now Sourries to Get Direct Primaries Law in Proper Shape.

By a curious error of the Wisconsin Legislature, the direct election of Senators has almost been prevented from going into effect for some months.

It has just come to light here that the Legislature of Senator LaFollette's State, in seeking to ratify the direct elections amendment, ratified the wrong measure. That is, there was embodied in the resolution of ratification which passed the Wisconsin Legislature a copy of a resolution for direct elections that never passed Congress.

Somebody up at Madison got hold of a copy of one of the resolutions dealing with direct elections which was proposed in Congress, but which did not go through. The certified copy of the resolution that actually did pass Congress was somehow overlooked. The resolution which the Wisconsin Legislature embodied in its resolution of ratification was one that would have fully recognized the right of the States to control Senatorial elections.

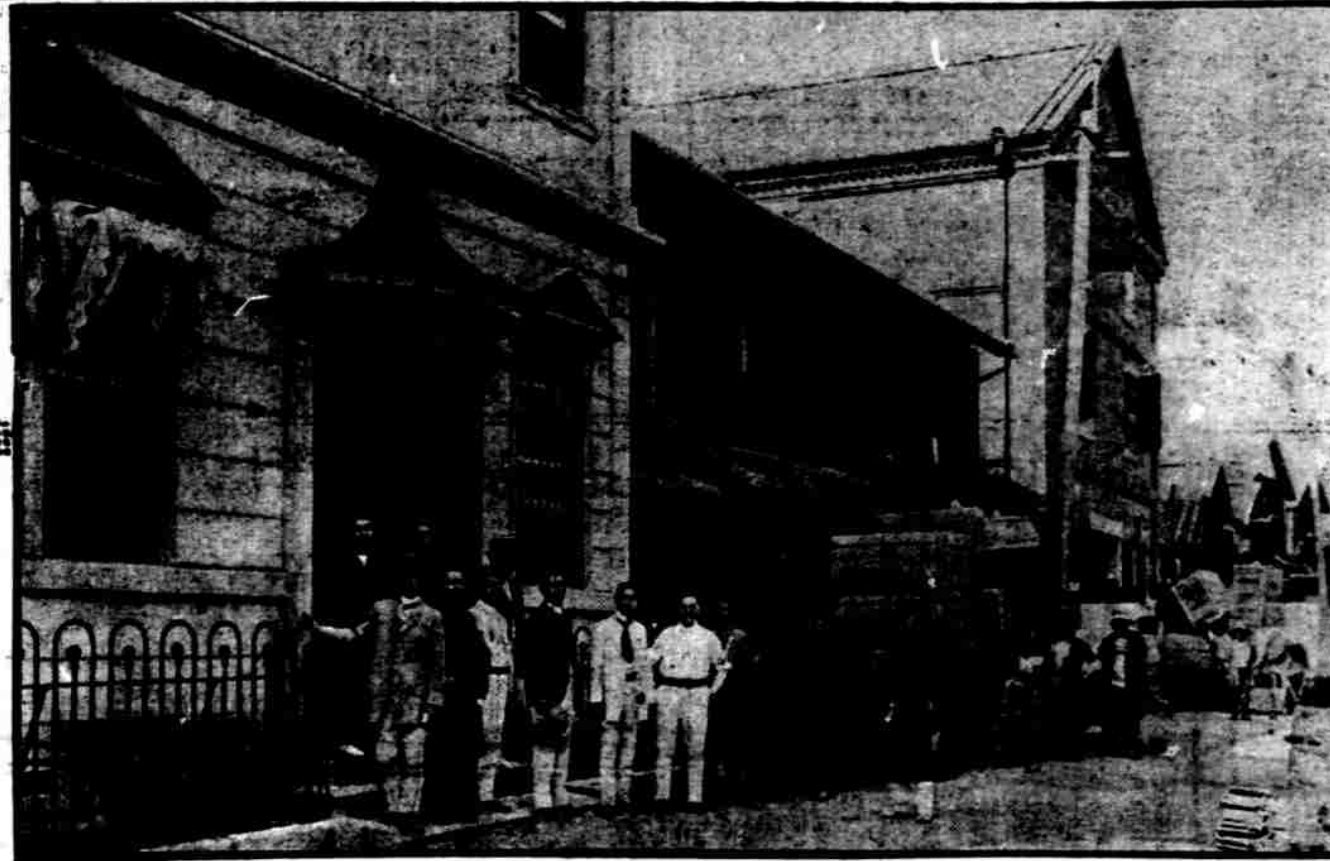

Fortunately, the Legislature of Wisconsin is still in session. It will correct the blunder.

Catholics Observe Feast.
